Did You Know?

Perched atop the Legislative Building is the Golden Boy (originally named "Eternal Youth") a representation of Hermes (Mercury), the Greek god of trade, luck, wealth and fertility. This fella was sculpted in Paris in 1918, stands 14 feet tall, and holds a sheaf of wheat while looking north towards the province's rich resources.

The world's most-famous spy has a tie to Winnipeg. Ian Fleming's 007 (Bond, James Bond) was heavily inspired by A Man Called Intrepid, which is both the name of the book and the code name of Sir William Stephenson, the Allied spymaster who was born in Winnipeg. A statue of Stephenson is on display at the CIA in Langley, VA, along with one in Winnipeg on Memorial Boulevard.

Without Winnipeg there would be no Winnie the Bear! In 1914 a WWI captain from Winnipeg took an orphaned black bear to England as the regiment mascot, which he would then donate to the London Zoo. It was here that A. A. Milne and his son, Christopher Robin, visited said bear, which became the inspiration for Winnie the Pooh.
